

Contents

Preface	page ix
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction: Interpreting Religious Materiality in the Ancient Near East	1
PART I IN THE NAME OF THE SPIRITS: HUMANS AND NATURAL ENVIRONMENTS
1 Materializing the Human Body: The Cult of the Ancestors among Ancient Near Eastern Societies	23
2 Sacred Nature: Deer, Water, and the Supernatural in Anatolia during the Bronze Age	47
PART II FOR THE GLORY OF THE GODS: ARCHITECTURE, ICONS, AND MATERIAL SYMBOLS FOR ENCOUNTERING THE DIVINE
3 Constructing Cosmotheism: Temples, Writing, and the Creation of Divine Pantheons in Ancient Mesopotamia	81
4 Imagining the Divine: Consecrating and Venerating Cultic Images in the Ancient Near East	121

viii CONTENTS

PART III A NEW ERA: TOWARD THE EMERGENCE OF MONOTHEISM

5	One God in One Temple: Religious Aniconism and the Rise of Monotheism in the Southern Levant during the First Millennium BCE	165
	Conclusions	204
	References	217
	Index	243