THE BIG BOOK OF BUTTS

EVA MANZANO EMILIO URBERUAGA

Every butt has its own personality. Some might be quite shy, while others are quite bold. But one thing's for certain: butts always exchange a friendly greeting whenever they see one another.

Most of us don't really know

OUR BUTTS.

That's not surprising since they're mostly always covered. But even though butts might look similar, they're actually all quite different.

They do love sitting, but they also adore walking, mountain climbing, going on vacations, and getting

PRESENTS.

A BIT OF HISTORY

The butt as we know it today has its very own birthday. It first appeared in the one fine day more or less...

CAMBRIAN PERIOD

540 MILLION YEARS AGO!

It all started when a few animals developed for eating and one to get rid of what they'd eaten. This change allowed us to eat, grow, and increase in size. Our brains were able to develop more.

A MOUTH

Thus, having a "butt" made us

MORE INTELLIGENT.

WHAT IS A HUMAN BUTT LIKE?

We humans have a voluminous butt. At the base of the back are two squishy round cheeks, separated by a crack. Women's butts are often larger, because of a hormone called

ESTROGEN.

WHY DO HUMANS HAVE SUCH BIG BUTTS?

When we evolved from apes, the muscles in our butts helped us make the change from walking on all fours to

STANDING UPRIGHT.

That's how we were able to run long distances and survive.

THE HABITS AND CUSTOMS OF BUTTS

Humans can be pretty squeamish about butts, and they also have a lot of names for them: bottom, behind, rear end...

In some cultures, it's rude to mention them: bu— SHHH!
And it's not allowed to show them in public. But butts still show up everywhere.

Babies love running around completely BARE-BOTTOMED.

Teenagers always check their butts in THE MIRROR

before leaving the house.

THE BUTTS IN MY NEIGHBORHOOD

Francine the baker's butt looks like a big round

LOAF OF BREAD.

Herman, on the other hand,
sells fruits and vegetables,
and his butt actually looks like a

BELL PEPPER.

At school, Big Paul always says his butt itches, and he scratches it with both hands. Then he chases us,
and we have to run away.

There is something undeniably
funny about butts, something that just makes people laugh.

For that reason alone,

MONUMENTS

should be built in their honor,
in city centers and town
squares all over the world.

UNDERWEAR

Humans have a variety of different butt SIZES.

Some people wear BRIEFS and others wear BOXERS.

Underpants might have patterns of hearts, flowers, polka dots, stripes, or superheroes. They come in large, extra large, medium, small, and extra small. There are also plus sizes for
